YOUR VISA COMPANION

In Western countries, one can normally travel freely, but a visa is needed for most countries in Asia. Indonesian authorities require a passport and a visa for longterm stay and study. Applying for a visa is part of your study abroad semester preparations. Visa procedures may vary from country to country, and sometimes even from one official to another. Asia Exchange recommends that students take care of their visa well before leaving for their destination.

In Indonesia, a student visa belongs to the Social-Cultural visa category. The Indonesian Embassy grants single-entry Social-Cultural visas to study in Indonesia (Index C9). However, not all embassies issue Social-Cultural visas for study purposes.

With the Social-Cultural visa, you can stay a maximum of the first 60 days in Indonesia. The visa is extendable twice, each extension for 60 days.
